Somerset

Somerset really is a county that has it all. Ranked seventh in the UK for size, it is far from being the most highly populated meaning there are vast expanses of open, unspoilt spaces waiting to be explored. What's more, it boasts plenty of beautiful buildings - in cities, villages and bustling market towns - with a rich heritage of history and legend.

Somerset is a County that rewards the adventurous and the inquisitive. It is such a mass of contrasts that it is all too easy to sweep through it and assume you know it when you might have seen only one of its many facets. If you only know Exmoor you might think all of Somerset is moorland. If you only cross the Somerset Levels you might think the County is flat. If you don't step outside Bath you will miss some amazing countryside including 3 Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty, the Quantock, Blackdown and Mendip Hills. If you visit just the rural heartland, you might not realise there are more than 60km of coast to discover.

While we are talking about the coast, you might not know that Somerset has one of the longest stretches of sandy beach in Europe as well as one of the highest tidal ranges making for some fascinating natural spectacles but it's not all sand - Somerset has its own Jurassic Coast with fossils and complex geology as well as wooded cliff tops.

Somerset is a haven for all kinds of wildlife and has more than 100 different reserves, parks and protected areas which places it among the best places for bird watching in the UK.
