

Aberdeenshire is famous for its dramatic coastlines, its idyllic countryside and of course its Royal residents. Balmoral Castle and its estate have been in the British Royal family since 1852. Whilst you may not get an invitation for tea here, you will be welcomed at any of the dozens of castles in the region.

On the beautiful east coast, you'll find Aberdeen. Known as The Granite City it has a thriving music scene and is packed with Museums and Galleries. Restaurants and bars are in abundance offering international cuisine as well as traditional Scottish fare.

Home to the Cairngorms National park, you'll have the chance to experience some truly breath-taking views. Spend a few days wandering through this unspoiled landscape and you may be lucky enough to spot Red Deer, Golden Eagles, Red squirrels and the truly remarkable Capercaillie.

Places to visit

Dunnottar Castle

Truly one of the most picturesque backdrops Scotland has to offer! It is an absolute must see but it should be noted it is a very steep walk down and up a flight of stairs to gain access to the castle.
