Luxembourg

Luxembourg

Luxembourg is a small country landlocked by Belgium, France and Germany. It has roots stretching back to the 10th Century, Luxembourg's history is closely intertwined with that of its more powerful neighbours, especially Germany.

Many of Luxembourg's inhabitants are trilingual in French, German and Luxembourgish - a dialect of German.

Luxembourg's prosperity was formerly based on steel manufacturing. With the decline of that industry, Luxembourg diversified and is now best known for its status as Europe's most powerful investment management centre.
